PIGMENTS AND OTHER ART MATERIALS

We recommend when specifying or purchasing art materials, particularly for institutional use, that you carefully consider the ultimate consumer. In cases where products may be used in nursery or elementary school classes, or in environments where there are people with disabilities who may be unable to read or understand safety labeling, you should specify and purchase materials which are certified non-toxic products. Specification and purchase of those materials will ensure that even the most sensitive populations can safely enjoy creative art and craft activities.

Other products which are now non toxic can be safely used by those persons who are able to read, understand and follow suggested safety precautions for handling those materials. Some art products cannot be made non-hazardous, but are necessary for certain creative activities. When used in properly supervised and controlled conditions, they can be enjoyed with complete safety.
